Tina, 16, brings her sister into the world.

When sixteen-year-old schoolgirl Tina Blake (1) was coming (come) home from school she was expecting to have her lunch. But she (2) found (find) her 38-year-old mother, Louise, on the floor in the hall, having a baby. She could see the baby’s head. With her father out at work, Tina phoned the emergency service services and told them what she (3) had just seen (just see). Phil Bastin of Kent Ambulance Service (4) told (tell) Tina that he (5) had sent (send) an ambulance but Tina would probably have to deliver the baby herself. He (6) never told (never tell) anyone how to deliver a baby on the phone before. But he told Tina what to do and she did it. ‘After I (7) got (get) some towels, Mr Bastin told me to wipe the baby’s mouth and nose,’ said Liz. Then, because she (8) did (do) everything she could do and the ambulance (9) arrived (arrive), she went back to school for afternoon. ‘At first, she (10) didn’t tell (not tell) us what (11) had happened (happen)’ said Tina’s teacher, Chris Hislop. ‘It seems that until the next day she (12) didn’t even tell (not even tell) her best friends in the class. And after school she (13) stayed (stay) behind to play basketball. Now, that’s what I call ‘cool’!
